Public Records Request	P007392-040919	4/9/2019	Gerald Dean de Cruz	I am sending you this Public Inquiry pursuant to California Constitution Article I, Section 3(b) concerning your department's "handcuffing policy". I would like to know your department's policy and procedure for handcuffing arrestees and detainees under your custody? Basically, what I wish to know is: (1) What procedures do your deputies use to ensure that handcuffs are not placed too tight? (Do you use the "finger-width method", i.e., placing the index finger between the cuff and the arrestee/detainee's wrist, or some other method, that allows the arrestee or detainee to be able to freely rotate (twist) his wrists comfortably without being able to slip his hands out of the cuffs?); (2) Does your department's "handcuffing policy" include handcuffing arrestees or detainees (behind their backs) so that their palms are facing outward, i.e., so that the backs of their hands are facing each other, i.e., "back-to-back" or "knuckle-to-knuckle" instead of the palms facing each other, i.e., "palm-to-palm"? (And wouldn't handcuffing an arrestee or detainee with his hands "secured" behind his back PAGE 1 positioned "back-to-back" require that the cuffs be placed on the arrestee/ detainee's wrists uncomfortably tight to prevent the wrists from rotating back to a more natural and comfortable position, i.e., the palms facing each other?) The two questions above is basically what I want to know and a formal response from you on your letterhead will suffice. However, should you have a copy of your policy in a memo or other departmental document, I would like a copy of it pursuant to the California Public Records Act (CPRA) of 1968 (Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250-6268). If the document is lengthy, I only require the first or title page that identifies the document and the page or pages that answers my two questions above. I thank you in anticipation of your timely response. I would be grateful if I could receive it within 30 days from the above date, but if you are unable to, please respond with an acknowledgment that you received this inquiry and a date that I can expect to receive your response.
